Draught Beer Quality Traineeship

Course Overview

PRL and CPM have joint responsibility for ensuring the quality of draught beer in Ireland for all Guinness products. In association with Taste 4 Success Skillnet, PRL and CPM are delighted to announce an exciting and new training opportunity in Draught Beer Dispense. Those selected to undertake this traineeship, will receive best practice development through classroom training coupled with on-the-job practical experience in pubs, hotels and bars. Trainees will be recruited into different regions and work closely with their PRL/CPM mentor to help ensure the best quality product is available on draught at the different outlets in that region.

This traineeship programme will involve both classroom and on-the-job training over the course of 24 weeks. It leads to a Certificate in Quality (Draught Beer Dispense) which incorporates FDQ accreditation aligned to Level 4 on the NFQ. Trainees may be allocated the use of a company vehicle from time to time, and so a full drivers licence is an essential requirement.

The traineeship programme is aimed at job-seekers who are in receipt of job-seekers benefit, job-seekers allowance, or Credits. Potential trainees may also be those looking to commence a career as a quality technician in any Food & Drink industry, or those looking to change career. Those in receipt of job-seekers allowance, benefit or credits will not have their payments impacted, if successful in their application.
